Child Health Nursing Jane W. Ball 2018-04-23 For courses in Pediatric Nursing. A comprehensive survey of family-centered pediatric nursing care Child Health Nursing: Partnering with Children & Families promotes excellence in nursing care for infants, children, and adolescents—in hospitals and in the community. It focuses on the importance of partnering with families to adapt care plans for children based on their age, health status, and social and cultural influences. The text considers the impact of contemporary care environments on nursing practice, both in health promotion and in the care of children with acute or chronic health conditions. By offering industry best practices and practical applications, the book encourages students to apply evidence-based findings and clinical reasoning to planning superior care. The updated 3rd edition explains how modern nursing practice is affected by reforms to healthcare and its delivery—such as electronic health records, new approaches to chronic and acute condition management, and a focus on prevention. To support safe, effective, and innovative care, this edition draws on the latest recommendations of NANDA International diagnoses, Nursing Intervention Classifications (NIC), Nursing Outcomes Classifications (NOC), and Healthy People 2020. The Future of Nursing Institute of Medicine 2011-02-08 The Future of Nursing explores how nurses' roles, responsibilities, and education should change significantly to meet the increased demand for care that will be created by health care reform and to advance improvements in America's increasingly complex health system. At more than 3 million in number, nurses make up the single largest segment of the health care work force. They also spend the greatest amount of time in delivering patient care as a profession. Nurses therefore have valuable insights and unique abilities to contribute as partners with other health care professionals in improving the quality and safety of care as envisioned in the Affordable Care Act (ACA) enacted this year. Nurses should be fully engaged with other health professionals and assume leadership roles in redesigning care in the United States. To ensure its members are well-prepared, the profession should institute residency training for nurses, increase the percentage of nurses who attain a bachelor's degree to 80 percent by 2020, and double the number who pursue doctorates. Furthermore, regulatory and institutional obstacles -- including limits on nurses' scope of practice -- should be removed so that the health system can reap the full benefit of nurses' training, skills, and knowledge in patient care. In this book, the Institute of Medicine makes recommendations for an action-oriented blueprint for the future of nursing.

Pharmacology for the Primary Care Provider - E-Book Marilyn Winterton Edmunds 2008-09-16 Written by and for nurse practitioners, this practical textbook focuses on what primary care providers need to learn and practice drug therapy. With an overall emphasis on patient teaching and health promotion, you will learn how to provide effective patient teaching about medications and how to gain patient compliance. Drug coverage focuses on "key drugs rather than "prototype drugs, so you can find important information about the most commonly used drugs rather than the first drug in each class. You will also find discussions on the legal and professional issues unique to nurse practitioners and other primary care providers. The 3rd edition also features an expanded emphasis on established clinical practice guidelines and evidence-based practice, plus two new chapters that cover drugs for ADHD and drugs for dementia. UNIQUE! Written specifically for nurse practitioners with an overall emphasis on patient teaching and health promotion. UNIQUE! Covers specific topics such as prescriptive authority, role implementation, and writing prescriptions. Presents comprehensive coverage of the drugs most commonly prescribed in – and the issues most relevant to – primary care practice. UNIQUE! Identifies the Top 200 drugs in chapter openers with a special icon and covers them in-depth to familiarize you with the most important, need-to-know drug information. Uses a consistent heading scheme for each prototype drug discussion to make it easier to learn and understand key concepts. Includes an introductory chapter on “Design and Implementation of Patient Education that highlights content on patient teaching and compliance. Includes specific “Patient Education sections in each drug chapter. Provides extensive coverage of drug therapy for special populations to alert you to special considerations based on age, pregnancy, race and other factors. A separate chapter on “Complementary and Alternative Therapies discusses the available complementary and alternative modalities, including detailed information on actions, uses, and interactions of commonly used herbs. Drug Overview tables at the beginning of each chapter outline the classifications of drugs discussed and provide a handy reference of drug classes and subclasses, generic names, and trade names. Clinical Alerts highlight essential information that primary care providers must remember in order to avoid serious problems, including cautions for prescribing, information about drug interactions, or warnings about particularly ominous adverse effects. An entire unit covers drugs for health promotion to introduce you to drugs commonly seen in outpatient primary care settings and to prepare you for practice in a society increasingly focused on health promotion and disease prevention. Includes separate chapters on Immunizations and Biologicals, Weight Management, Smoking Cessation, Vitamins and Minerals, Over-the-Counter Medications, and Complementary and Alternative Therapies.

Pharmacology for the Primary Care Provider Marilyn W. Edmunds 2004 The only pharmacology resource specifically written by and for nurse practitioners, this new edition provides a greater emphasis on prototype drugs while retaining its comprehensive approach to the pharmacology content needed by the primary care provider. New features include prototype drug lists in the coverage of drug classes that receive expanded coverage, detailed patient teaching guidelines, expanded content in both the geriatric and pediatric chapters, a special icon identifying the Top 200 Drugs, and highlighted Clinical Alerts. Comprehensive coverage is provided of all drugs commonly prescribed and used in the primary care setting. Prototype drugs are presented first in each drug class, with expanded coverage of these agents. Clear explanations describe how each drug in a class differs from its prototype. Detailed information shows how to provide effective patient teaching, as well as how to gain patient compliance. Chapters focus on the practitioner's role in patient teaching, drug action, and drug therapy. Online Resources are provided at the end of each chapter. The Top 200 Drugs are described according to the number of U.S. prescriptions dispensed. Five new units improve the organization of material: Renal/Genitourinary Agents (Unit 8); Psychotropic Agents (Unit 11); Endocrine Agents (Unit 12); Female Reproductive Agents (Unit 13); and Health Promotion (Unit 15). New chapters examine over-the-counter medications, compliance and the therapeutic experiment, overview of the nervous system, substance abuse, treatment of common infections, weight management, and complementary and alternative treatments. Reorganized and redesigned format and headings are more consistent and easy to follow. Content has been expanded in the geriatric and pediatric "special populations" chapters (Ch. 6 and 7). More concise coverage of disease processes features clearer ties to the Mechanism of Action sections. 25 new figures have been added to the pathophysiology and Mechanisms of Action sections. A Table of Common Interactions is included on the inside of the back cover.

Evaluating the Use of a Postpartum Hemorrhage Simulation as a Teaching Strategy in an Undergraduate Nursing Program Pat DiGiacomo 2017 A recurring theme in the literature is that simulation is a positive teaching strategy when compared to other methods of instruction and produces positive student outcomes (Jefferies, 2016). Simulation provides educators a way to reproduce a clinical teaching experience in a safe, supportive learning environment. The purpose of this quantitative research study was to determine whether an obstetrical simulation educational experience is an effective strategy for educating undergraduate nursing students in the management of a postpartum hemorrhage. A quasi-experimental study using a pre-test and post-test design was employed in a Women's Health Course and Pediatrics course over one semester. A single convenience sample (N=81) of junior baccalaureate nursing students was used for this study. There were 41 students in the control group and 40 in the experimental group. Both the control and experimental groups received the traditional didactic session, case study, skills lab instruction, and clinical. In addition, the experimental group received the postpartum simulation. This simulation study tested the differences in knowledge, satisfaction, and confidence level between junior nursing students who did and did not participate in the simulation. There were three instruments used during this study; a pre-test/post-test for knowledge acquisition, the National League for Nursing (NLN) (2005) student satisfaction and confidence level survey, and the Creighton Competency Evaluation Instrument (C-CEI) (Todd, Manz, Hawkins, Parsons, & Hercinger, 2008). The pre-test/post-test measured the knowledge acquisition obtained from the didactic session. NLN (2005) student satisfaction and confidence level survey measured students' satisfaction and confidence level from either the interactive skills lab sessions or the simulation. The C-CEI tool measured the students' performance during the simulation. There were four categories: assessment, communication, clinical judgment, and patient safety that the researcher measured the students' performance during the simulation. Data for the knowledge acquisition, revealed both the experimental and control groups significantly increased between the pre-test and the post-test. The post-test showed statistically significant differences between groups, with the control group outperforming the experimental group. As such, the data demonstrate that the simulation did not have a significant effect on knowledge. Data from the NLN (2005) student satisfaction and confidence level survey were analyzed using a two group MANOVA. Although the results of the MANOVA were not significant, as a follow up analysis, the individual questions were used as the dependent variables in a MANOVA. When the individual questions were used as the dependent variables in a MANOVA, the experimental group performed significantly better in two out of the five questions on student satisfaction and five out of the nine questions on student self-confidence. There was a strong positive correlation between satisfaction with current learning and self-confidence. Data for the students' performance were analyzed using the C-CEI tool. A perfect score on the C-CEI instrument was 14 points, 100%. The overall group average was 8.1 points or 58%. Of the four sections in the C-CEI tool, the lowest mean was Communication (0.5185), followed by Patient Safety (mean = 0.5333). Although student groups were able to communicate with the patient effectively 67% of the time, none of the simulation groups provided an organized report to the healthcare provider with minimal prompting. During the postpartum simulation, 33% of the students administered medications safely. The wrong dosage and incorrect technique were seen in 67% of the simulations. Communication and safe medication practice are essential to ensuring patient safety; it is important that faculty prepare nursing graduates to provide safe care. Even though there were limitations to this study, a convenience sample at one public university, the findings are informative and have implications for future teaching and learning strategies. The results of this study add to the body of knowledge that supports the use of simulation as a teaching strategy in undergraduate nursing education.
